My name is Chhe Huykheng, and I have been a primary school teacher for over 10 years. I can only speak my native language, Khmer, but I have dedicated myself to teaching children with care and patience. Recently, I had to leave my previous job because the company was facing difficulties, and they could no longer pay salaries. Now, I am looking for a new opportunity, and I hope to teach a single shift in a primary class.

I know that most schools nowadays require teachers to work two shifts, but I am not able to do so because I also teach at a national school. Although I could only complete half of my bachelor's degree in pedagogy, I have gained valuable skills and experience over the past decade. I am confident in my ability to help young children learn and grow.

This CV is written by my son, who is studying in the IT field. He helped me to translate my words into English because I do not speak the language well. I am very grateful for his support, as he wants to make sure I can apply for this job in the best way possible.

I am a mother of two sons, and I have worked hard to support their education. Despite my own limitations, I always encourage them to learn as much as they can, especially different languages. I have made many sacrifices, even when it comes to basic needs, to make sure they can continue their studies.

I hope that the school will consider my application and give me a chance to share my skills and experience with the children. Even though I have not had the opportunity to study much, I have always been committed to my work, and I believe I can make a positive difference.
